1.2. Brief Description of the Programme

The programme offers teaching at the highest level in contemporary art on a variety of contemporary art practices, such as painting, drawing, photography, video, film, sculpture, installation, performance and new media, etc.

The programme is interdisciplinary and not medium-specific.

The programme accommodates students who are not proficient in Norwegian, and all courses can, if necessary, be taught in English.

1.3. Admission Requirements

Admission to the Master’s programme requires a three-year degree in fine art (Bachelor's degree of 180 ECTS credits or equivalent). The first degree must include specialisation in a subject, course or course group of at least 80 ECTS credits within the discipline of the Master’s programme.

The following criteria will be prioritised:
- independent practice and artistic research
- motivation
- suitability for the programme
- previous relevant experience

All applicants must document proficiency in English.

1.4. The Programme’s Learning Outcomes

Upon completing the programme, students should be able to
- conduct independent, high-level research into artistic questions, ideas or issues through experimentation and production
- study complex artistic or theoretical references and other relevant methods
- analyse, contextualise and discuss their works within a self-reflective, critical framework
- approach ideas, processes and materials in an exploratory and creative way, and produce a unique production of work informed by, and based on, their artistic research
- articulate artistic questions and issues that are relevant for developing their own and others’ practice
- analyse, review and discuss their own and others’ work, including the presentation, within a critical framework
- use informative and analytical methods to propose, articulate and reflect on different interpretations and critiques of artworks and ways of approaching artistic questions
- contextualise and discuss key concepts in cultural practice and theory
- engage in critical discussions with their peers about their ideas and investigations of cultural, social, historical and political issues
• develop networks for dialogue or collaboration with others on their own work and independent projects and research
• express their artistic questions in writing, employing a vocabulary suited to their practice
• understand experimental strategies as well as appropriate ways to present and disseminate writing practice
• produce a final essay where they, in a reflective way, articulate questions and ideas that inform or shape their practice, or produce texts as a form of artistic practice
• have a comprehensive understanding of different exhibition or presentation formats, including their histories, contexts and conventions
• present their own works in appropriate and varied forms of display, in collaboration with curators, fellow students or others
• communicate in visual, spatial and material ways in order to engage the viewer

1.5. Structure and Progression
At the core of the study programme is students’ work in the studio. Tutorials and group critiques support the development of the student’s individual practice. The programme is based on the understanding that contemporary art is closely linked to historical, social, political and cultural contexts.

Emphasis is therefore placed on analysing and contextualising artistic practice within a broad perspective, with a particular emphasis on art history, philosophy, anthropology, architecture, political theory, psychoanalysis as well as other disciplines and contexts that are part of the students’ own practice.

The programme offers approaches with references to the art field, but it also extends to other disciplines and encourages a critical discourse within the practices we teach.

Writing practice is a point of emphasis. With support from the Academy's writing teachers and publishing facilities, we encourage students to develop their own voice and publish their own texts in a variety of formats.

Public presentation of students' practice is an important part of the programme. Through exhibitions, the Open Academy, performances and lectures, students are encouraged to enter into a dialogue with their fellow practitioners and with audiences outside the Academy of Fine Art.

The programme is organised according to five course categories: Artistic Practice, Group Critique, Thematic Focus, Theory for Practice and Exhibition Practice.

Artistic Practice: Artistic practice is a central aspect of studying at the Academy of Fine Art. Students develop and produce their works independently. This may involve technical instruction, artistic production, engaging in the works of other artists, reading literature and theory, archival research, fieldwork, or any other type of activity that is relevant for the student's artistic practice. At the beginning of every academic year, students choose a main advisor among the Academy of Fine Art's academic staff who will oversee their development and provide continuity.

During the first year of the programme, the main emphasis will be on experimenting and exploring processes, ideas and the use of materials. During the first semester, there are no specific requirements to producing finished works. But by the end of the second semester, students must have completed one or more works that demonstrate their ability to incorporate both their own independent research as well as the critical perspectives their main advisor discussed with them, with an eye towards developing the student's future production. During the second year of the programme, the emphasis will be more on students developing and producing their graduation project.

Group Critique: An important tool for students to develop their own practice is the ability to both enter into their work and to obtain a critical distance to it; that is, to assume the dual role of producer and external viewer. Further, the ability to interpret and discuss other artists’ works is crucial because it helps students reflect on how their own works may be received in public space. Central to the group critique sessions are formal presentations, critiques and analysis.

Allowing students to have their works, artistic questions and intentions discussed by their peers allows individual students to test out and reflect on the various interpretations generated by the works. These discussions may reveal connotations, implications, issues or solutions that the student has not yet considered, and they may also corroborate his or her artistic decisions. By engaging in discussions about the works of others, students will also develop a critical vocabulary and tools to analyse and question works. Discussing other students’ works is an exercise in interpreting art, thinking aloud and reflecting on possible perspectives, approaches and solutions.

Since the group critique sessions are the forum for students at the Academy of Fine Art to test out and discuss their own artworks with others, they will continue throughout both years of study. This also enables students from different classes to interact with one another.

Thematic Focus: The Academy of Fine Art offers a wide range of thematic workshops, seminars and lectures that aim to enhance the students’ practice, gain an understanding of the history and context that shape contemporary art, and engage critically with issues pertaining to contemporary art, culture and society.

The course will to varying degrees relate theory to practice, and topics will often cut across different practices and discourses, including artistic practices, technical specialisations, performance, dance and theatre, social and political issues, cultural theory, philosophy, anthropology, psychoanalysis, architecture, literature and music.

Theory for Practice: By engaging with theoretical and art historical approaches, Theory for Practice contributes to students’ development of a language and frame of mind that can support reflection on the work of oneself and others. These approaches can involve writing practice but conversations are of equal importance. During their final year, students will write a graduation essay that enhances their ability to examine and contextualise their graduation project.

Exhibition Practice: Developing ways to present an artistic project in public spaces is a central part of any artist’s practice. The Academy of Fine Art offers a number of occasions where students may experiment with exhibition practices and learn to finalise their work so that it can be viewed and discussed in public. This may be in the format of an exhibition, performance, reading, intervention, radio transmission, publication or other modes of public expression.

1.5.1. Course Structure

ECTS credits are used to indicate the amount of work required by each course. 60 ECTS credits correspond to a year of full-time study. One ECTS credit corresponds to 25 to 30 actual hours of work for the student. Actual hours of work include teacher-led instruction, lectures, written assignments, seminars and independent studies, etc..

1.5.2. Exchange Programmes

Students are encouraged to be actively involved in the broader international art scene and to spend a portion of their studies at approved institutions abroad. This should normally take place during the second semester, within one of the following exchange programmes:

- ERASMUS (European Community Action Scheme for the Mobility of University Students)
- KUNO, a Nordplus network of Nordic and Baltic art academies
- bilateral agreements with other institutions, as well as approved student-initiated projects

The Academy of Fine Art in Oslo is a member of ELIA, the European League of Institutes of the Arts.

1.6. Teaching and Learning Methods

The programme consists of independent studio-based work, as well of tutorials and teacher-led instruction. The working and learning methods may consist of tutorials, seminars, workshops, lectures, group critique, exhibition practice and student-initiated projects.

The programme’s coursework requirements include the following:

- studio production and the development of artistic practice
- tutorials with main advisor and other teachers
- active participation in workshops, seminars and lectures (minimum 80% attendance)
- follow-up on feedback from teachers and fellow students
- participation in and moderation of group critique sessions
- development of exhibition projects under curatorial guidance

Further information about the coursework requirements is included in the individual course descriptions.

Provisions on absence and leave are provided in the regulations concerning studies at the Oslo National Academy of the Arts (Forskrift om studiene ved Kunstfagskolen i Oslo).

1.7. Assessment

The required coursework must be approved in order for a student to receive a final assessment in the given course.

Semester 1

The course Artistic Practice will be assessed at the end of the semester by two examiners, of whom one is the student's main advisor. The course Group Critique will be assessed by the student's main advisor. The courses Thematic Focus and Exhibition Practice will each be assessed by the teacher of the given class. In the courses Thematic Focus and Exhibition Practice, it is also possible to carry out an individual project in place of a given class.

Semester 2
The courses Artistic Practice and Group Critique will be assessed by the main advisor at the end of the semester. The courses Thematic Focus and Theory for Practice will each be assessed by the teacher of the given class.

Semester 3
The course Artistic Practice will be assessed at the end of the semester by two examiners, of whom one is the student’s main advisor. The course Group Critique will be assessed by the student’s main advisor. The courses Thematic Focus, Theory for Practice and Exhibition Practice will each be assessed by the teacher of the given class.

Semester 4
The final examination will take place at the end of the fourth semester The student must present a final graduation project. The courses Artistic Practice and Exhibition Practice are included in this assessment. The work will be assessed by two examiners, of whom at least one is external. The courses Group Critique will be assessed by the main advisor, and Theory for Practice will each be assessed by the teacher of the given class.

For further information on how courses are assessed, see the individual course descriptions.

All the courses in the programme are graded pass/fail, and every course must be passed in order for the student to achieve the degree.

Further provisions on assessment and exams have been laid down in the regulations concerning studies at the Oslo National Academy of the Arts (Forskrift om studiene ved Kunsthøgskolen i Oslo).

1.8. Quality Assurance
The Oslo National Academy of the Arts has systems for assuring and enhancing the quality of all parts of the education. Students are important contributors to this work, for example by participating in student evaluations and the annual learning environment survey.

Brief Description of the Course

Artistic practice is a central aspect of studying at the Academy of Fine Art.

Students develop and produce their works independently. This may involve technical instruction, artistic production, contemplating the works of other artists, literature reviews, archival research, fieldwork or any other type of activity that is relevant for the student's artistic practice.

The Course’s Learning Outcomes

Upon completing the course, students should be able to

- independently explore artistic questions, ideas or concerns through experimentation and production, study of complex artistic or theoretical references and other relevant methods
- approach ideas, processes and materials in an exploratory and imaginative way
- analyse, contextualise and discuss their works within a critical framework

Teaching and Learning Methods

The student’s work, process and methods will be developed, analysed and assessed in an ongoing dialogue with teachers. Tutorials will be provided by the academic staff as well as by guest teachers.

The work will be presented and discussed individually in order to provide feedback and clarify goals and intentions, articulate questions and define areas for further research. Students should also develop appropriate research and working methods, analyse processes and final works, and develop a critical framework and language in relation to their own practice. Further artistic output will be necessary in all subsequent semesters.

Coursework requirements:

- studio production and the development of an artistic practice
- participation in at least two tutorials with the main advisor as well as two tutorials with other teachers
- follow-up on feedback from teachers

Assessment

The required coursework must be approved in order for a student to receive a final course assessment. The course will be assessed at the end of the semester by two examiners. The following will be assessed:

- the student’s production as seen in relation to the course’s learning outcomes

The course is graded pass/fail.

Brief Description of the Course

An important tool for students to develop their own practice is the ability to both enter into their work and to obtain a critical distance to it; that is, to assume the dual role of producer and external viewer. Further, the ability to interpret and discuss other artists' works is crucial because it helps students reflect on how their own works may be received in public. In the group critique sessions, students practise giving formal presentations and critiquing and analysing works.

The Course’s Learning Outcomes

Upon completing the course, students should be able to

- identify complex artistic questions in dialogue with others, as well as problems and challenges that are relevant for developing their own and others’ practice
- evaluate their own and others' work, including the presentation format, within a critical framework
- propose and consider different interpretations, criticism of works and approaches to complex academic questions in productive and reflected ways

Teaching and Learning Methods

Students participate in regular group critique sessions. By presenting their own work and discussing this work with their peers, students will reflect on one another’s work and analyse individual practices. The agenda for the group critique sessions is set by the student who is presenting his or her work. Students must prepare a presentation, and possibly a written statement, where they evaluate the artistic decisions that have informed their work and identify questions, issues or concerns in relation to their work.

One of the student moderates the group critique of a fellow student and provides critical feedback before, during and after the session.

Coursework requirements:

- participation in the group critique sessions, including one discussion where the student formally presents his or her own work or exhibition
- moderation of one group critique session per year

Assessment

The required coursework must be approved in order for a student to receive a final course assessment.

The main advisor will assess the student in relation to the course’s learning outcomes.

The course is graded pass/fail.

Brief Description of the Course

The Academy of Fine Art offers a wide range of thematic workshops, seminars and lectures to enable the students to enrich their own practice, gain an understanding of the history and context that shape contemporary art, and engage critically with issues in contemporary art, culture and society.

These various methods will hereinafter be referred to under the label “class” (Norw. kurs).

The Course’s Learning Outcomes

Upon completing the course, students should be able to

- discuss and analyse their ideas and investigations with fellow students
- study and work in a critical dialogue or collaboration with others

Teaching and Learning Methods

The course will to varying degrees relate theory to practice, and topics will often cut across different practices and discourses, including artistic practices, technical specialisations, performance, dance and theatre, social and political issues, cultural theory, philosophy, anthropology, psychoanalysis, architecture, literature and music.

It is also possible to conduct independent research in a student-initiated project that focuses on a specific topic. Excursions are often part of thematic workshops or seminars but can also be incorporated in a student-initiated project.

Participation and the exchange of ideas are essential in workshops, seminars and lectures, so it is expected that students follow and participate actively in the classes they choose.

Coursework requirements:

- active participation in a common class for first-year Master’s students in addition to an elective class (minimum 80% attendance in both classes).
- students who carry out an individual project rather than an elective class must receive tutorials from a teacher both before and after the project; this must be approved by the main advisor and is seen in relation to the course’s learning outcomes.

Assessment

The required coursework must be approved in order for a student to receive a final course assessment.

Students will be assessed by the teacher. The assessment will be seen in relation to the course’s learning outcomes. The course will be passed upon completing a common class and an elective class.

The course is graded pass/fail.

Brief Description of the Course

Presenting one’s own work in public is central to all kinds of artistic practice. The Academy of Fine Art provides several opportunities for students to experiment with different exhibition practices and to learn to finalise their work so that it can be viewed and discussed in public. This may be in the form of an exhibition, performance, reading, intervention, radio transmission, publication or other modes of expression in the public sphere.

The Course’s Learning Outcomes

Upon completing the course, students should be able to

- experiment with different ways of exhibiting or communicating their works, and initiate public presentations
- work with others, including curators and fellow students, on the production of a public presentation
- develop an understanding of different exhibition or presentation formats, including their histories, contexts and conventions

Teaching and Learning Methods

During the first year, students’ exhibition practice may assume a variety of forms: they may present their work in one of the galleries at the Academy of Fine Art, at an exhibition or at other public platforms outside the Academy, in a publication, or by means of any other form of public presentation. They can develop their exhibition project within the framework of one of the seminars or workshops offered by academic staff or guest teachers at the Academy of Fine Art. In seminars and workshops, students will learn about and discuss different exhibition practices, visit exhibitions, or collaborate on a public presentation.

If students choose to develop their exhibition project on their own, they will be responsible for all aspects of the exhibition, including the project’s production, presentation and communication. Students must discuss the project with their teacher both before and after the exhibition, and they must present a critical evaluation of their public presentation to their teacher, either orally or in writing, after the exhibition.

Coursework requirements:

- active participation in exhibition workshops/seminar (minimum 80% attendance) or
- an independent exhibition project, including all aspects of producing the exhibition, that is discussed with a teacher before and after the project

Assessment

The required coursework must be approved in order for a student to receive a final course assessment.

Students will be assessed by the teacher. Students who choose to carry out an independent exhibition project must have their project approved by a teacher, either orally or in writing.

The assessment will be seen in relation to the course’s learning outcomes. The course is graded pass/fail.

The agenda for the group critiques is set by the student who is presenting his or her work. Students must prepare a presentation, and possibly a written statement, where they evaluate the artistic decisions that have informed their work and also identify questions, issues or concerns in relation to their work.

One of student moderates the group critique of the individual student and provides critical feedback before, during and after the session.

Coursework requirements:
- participation in the group critique sessions, including one discussion where the student formally presents his or her own work or exhibition
- moderation of one group critique session per year
Assessment
The required coursework must be approved in order for a student to receive a final course assessment.

The main advisor will assess the student in relation to the course’s learning outcomes.

The course is graded pass/fail.

Brief Description of the Course
The Academy of Fine Art offers a wide range of thematic workshops, seminars and lectures to enable the students to enrich their own practice, gain an understanding of the history and context that shape contemporary art, and engage critically with issues in contemporary art, culture and society.

These various methods will hereinafter be referred to under the label “class” (Norw. kurs).

The Course’s Learning Outcomes
Upon completing the course, students should be able to

- establish methods for reviewing and discussing works of art and artistic approaches within a critical framework
- establish methods for identifying key concepts in cultural practice and theory

Teaching and Learning Methods
The course will to varying degrees relate theory to practice, and topics will often cut across different practices and discourses, including artistic practices, technical specialisations, performance, dance and theatre, social and political issues, cultural theory, philosophy, anthropology, psychoanalysis, architecture, literature and music.

It is also possible to conduct independent research in a student-initiated project that focuses on a specific topic. Excursions are often part of thematic workshops or seminars but can also be incorporated in a student-initiated project.

Participation and the exchange of ideas are essential in workshops, seminars and lectures, so it is expected that students follow and participate actively in the classes they choose. Unless otherwise stated, there is an 80% attendance requirement for all organised teaching at the Academy of Fine Art. Students who cannot attend or who do not show up are expected to inform their teacher in advance and state the reason for their absence.

Coursework requirements:

- active participation in at least two classes (minimum 80% attendance)
- if one of the classes has been replaced by an individual project, the student must receive tutorials from a teacher both before and after the project. The project must be approved by the main advisor and is seen in relation to the course’s learning outcomes
Assessment
The required coursework must be approved in order for a student to receive a final course assessment. Students will be assessed by the teacher. The assessment will be seen in relation to the course’s learning outcomes. Students need to complete two courses.

The course is graded pass/fail.

Brief Description of the Course
Developing ways to describe and present an artistic project is a central part of an artist’s practice. By means of theoretical and art-historical approaches, Theory for Practice should encourage the students to develop a language and a mindset that can support reflection on their own and others’ artistic practice. Sometimes this work will involve writing practice, but oral conversations may be equally important.

The Course’s Learning Outcomes
Upon completing the course, students should be able to
- recognise several different critical perspectives related to contemporary art
- relate relevant concepts from art history and theory to their own work

Teaching and Learning Methods
The course normally takes place as seminars/lectures where the students read up on assigned material in advance. Students may also be asked to hand in written assignments and/or carry out oral presentations.

Coursework requirements:
- active participation in classes (minimum 80% attendance)
- submission of written assignments and/or delivery of oral presentations

In exceptional cases, a student may carry out a self-organised project rather than participate in a class. This must be agreed upon in advance with the student’s main advisor as well as the course teacher.

Assessment
The required coursework must be approved in order for a student to receive a final course assessment. Students will be assessed by the teacher.

The assessment will be seen in relation to the course’s learning outcomes.

The course is graded pass/fail.

Brief Description of the Course

Artistic practice lies at the core of the study programme at the Academy of Fine Art. Students develop and produce their works independently. This may involve technical instruction, artistic production, contemplating the works of other artists, literature reviews, archival research, fieldwork or any other type of activity that is relevant for the student’s artistic practice.

The Course’s Learning Outcomes

Upon completing the course, students should be able to

- produce an innovative and coherent body of work that shows clarity of purpose and direction
- use their studies of and independent research into artistic questions, ideas or problems, as well as their acquired knowledge and skills, to produce new works in creative ways
- critically shape and discuss their works both as informed by and as part of their independent research

Teaching and Learning Methods

The main emphasis will be on students developing and producing their graduation project. Their work, process and methodology will be developed, analysed and assessed during ongoing tutorials by teachers. Personal tutorials will be provided by academic staff at the Academy of Fine Art as well as by guest teachers.

Each student’s work is presented and discussed individually in order to provide feedback and clarify goals and intentions, formulate questions and define areas for further exploration. Students should also develop appropriate research and working methods, analyse processes and finalised works, and develop a critical framework and language in relation to their own practice.

Coursework requirements:

- studio production and the development of an artistic practice
- participation in at least two tutorials with the main advisor as well as two tutorials with other teachers
- follow-up on feedback from teachers

Assessment

The required coursework must be approved in order for a student to receive a final course assessment.

Prior to the Open Academy at the end of the semester, the course will base assessed by two examiners, of whom one is the student’s main advisor.

The following will be assessed:

- the student’s production as seen in relation to the course’s learning outcomes

The course is graded pass/fail.

Brief Description of the Course
Students participate in regular group critique sessions. By presenting their own work and discussing this work with their peers, students will collectively reflect on one another's work and analyse individual practices.

The Course’s Learning Outcomes
Upon completing the course, students should be able to
- articulate artistic questions, problems and challenges that are relevant for developing their own and others’ practice
- evaluate their own and others’ work, including the form of presentation, within a critical framework
- propose and consider different interpretations, criticism of works and approaches to complex academic questions in productive and reflected ways

Teaching and Learning Methods
An important tool for students to develop their own practice is the ability to both enter into their work and to obtain a critical distance to it; that is, to assume the dual role of producer and external viewer. Further, the ability to interpret and discuss other artists’ works is crucial because it helps students reflect on how their own works may be received in the public domain. In the group critique sessions, students practise giving formal presentations and critiquing and analysing works.

Letting students have their works, artistic questions and intentions be discussed by their peers allows the individual student to test out and reflect on the various interpretations that the works generate. These discussions may reveal connotations, implications, issues or solutions that the student has not yet considered, and they may also corroborate his or her artistic decisions.

By engaging in discussions about the works of others, students will also develop a critical vocabulary and tools to analyse and question works. Discussing other students’ works is an exercise in interpreting art, thinking aloud and reflecting on possible perspectives, approaches and solutions.

Since the group critique sessions are the forum for students to test out and discuss their works with others, they will continue throughout both years of study. This also enables first- and second-year students to interact with one another.

Group critique of individual practice develops on the basis of the students’ own works, ideas and questions.

The agenda for the group critique sessions is set by the student who is presenting his or her work. Students must prepare a presentation, and possibly a written statement, where they evaluate the artistic decisions that have informed their work and also identify questions, issues or concerns in relation to their work.

One of the students moderates the group critique of the individual student and provides critical feedback before, during and after the session.

Brief Description of the Course
Presenting your own work in public is central to all kinds of artistic practice. The Academy of Fine Art provides several opportunities for students to experiment with different exhibition practices and learn to finalise their work so that it can be viewed and discussed in public. This may be in the forms of an exhibition, performance, reading, intervention, radio transmission, publication or other mode of public expression.

The Course’s Learning Outcomes
Upon completing the course, students should be able to
- prepare an original body of work for public presentation
- plan and lead a project’s public presentation
- prepare the presentation of work in appropriate display formats or dissemination in collaboration with others, including coordinators and fellow students
- communicate in visual, spatial and material modes in order to engage the viewer
- provide a conceptual, aesthetic and critical framework for their work

Teaching and Learning Methods
The focus will be on the students’ graduation projects. Along with a curator, the second-year students will develop a concept for a public presentation of their graduation projects, discuss the process underlying their works, set up the graduation exhibition and present and communicate their work to a larger audience.

Coursework requirements:
- active participation in exhibition workshops and seminars (with minimum 80% attendance)
- understanding of different formats and contexts for exhibition practices
- follow-up of feedback from teachers and fellow students
- development of the final degree exhibition with coordinators guidance

Assessment
The required coursework must be approved in order for a student to receive a final course assessment.
Students will be assessed by the teacher.

The following will be assessed:
- the student’s preparation for the public presentation of their work, its presentation and communication in a variety of media as seen in relation to the course’s learning outcomes

The course is graded pass/fail.
